

Trail Description:

- Walk back about 100 m from the parking area to the trailhead. The trailhead post is on top of some small bluffs and wrapped in flagging tape.
- The path soon enters the forest and climbs steeply towards a junction. To the right is the Brigade Trail; to the left is the Gold Rush Bluffs trail that heads up Gate Mountain.
- The Gold Rush Bluffs trail leads to a meadow with large boulder bluffs. The trail is short (less than 10 m) but steep. Use this as a turnaround point or, for a longer hike, continue up to Gate Mountain.
- The trail to the right of the junction (Brigade Trail) leads to a ridge along a bluff. The path is flat and less than a kilometre later leads to a campsite equipped with benches, picnic table, and outhouse.

Please Respect the Environment!

- Remain on the trail at all times to prevent environmental damage.
- Leave all park flora and fauna where and how you found it.
- Please use caution while driving on forest service roads or other unpaved roads; a four-wheel drive vehicle is strongly recommended for accessing unpaved roads.

Getting There:

- From Hope, drive northeast along the Trans-Canada Highway (Hwy 1).
- Past the Alexandra Bridge Park is Alexandra Tunnel. Reset your odometer at the tunnel and drive for 2.9 kms.
- Then look to the right for an old trailhead post marked with flagging tape.
- Just past the trailhead to the left is a gravel pull-out. Park here and walk back to the trailhead.
